Camp Director

Chris Johnson
Head Men's Coach

Chris Johnson will enter his second season as the head coach of the University of Sioux Falls men's basketball team in 2009-10. It only took one season for the second-year coach to make his mark on the program.

Johnson coached the 2008-09 Cougars to a Sweet 16 appearance at the NAIA Men's Division II National Basketball Tournament in Point Lookout, Missouri with an upset win over third-seeded Cedarville University.

Under Johnson's direction, Sioux Falls won the 2008-09 Great Plains Athletic Conference (GPAC) postseason tournament championship. Sioux Falls won four road games in eight days in the tournament. The postseason crown was the third in four years for USF.

Before arriving in Sioux Falls, Johnson was the top assistant coach for three seasons at the University of North Dakota.

Prior to joining the UND coaching staff, Johnson spent the 2004-05 season as head coach at Culver-Stockton College.

He was named 2004-05 Heart of America Athletic Conference Coach of the Year after guiding the team to the first home conference playoff game in program history.

Additional Camps

Coach Johnson and his assistants will be holding individual or small group coaching sessions that are open to any individual of any age. These sessions allow for more individualized instruction in any area of the game of basketball.

Team camps for high school ages are also available
